

Social Media Policy

Cary Memorial Library participates in social media on a variety of platforms. The library uses social media to share information about upcoming events, programs, services, readers' advisory, updates to hours of operation, and to keep users informed of activities at Cary Library.

Library social media sites including comments are subject to applicable public records laws and are retained as per the Town of Lexington's Social Media Policy.

Cary Library reserves the right to monitor content on all its social media accounts and remove any content it deems, in its sole discretion, obscene, abusive, defamatory, threatening, harassing, discriminatory, in violation of copyright laws, or in violation of Cary Library's Rules of Behavior Policy. The Library also reserves the right to block users who violate this policy.

Any public comments expressed on Cary Library's social media platforms do not reflect the views or positions of the Library or its staff. The Library is not responsible for the content of public comments.

The use of links, references, or other third-party content does not constitute an endorsement or recommendation by Cary Library.

Policy approved by the Library Board of Trustees – 7/25/16, Updated 9/5/18, 5/3/23
